LETTER FROM LIEUT. HUNTER TO THE AMERICAN PUBLIC. Circumstances in a high degree involving the honor of our flag have occurred near the station to which I have been attached. No helping hand has been given to our unfortunate countrymen. Exposed to the wrath of a tyrant, they have been driven line of steamers that would meet the commercial necfrom Paraguay, their property has been confiscated. and the flag, so proud because it waves as a banner for the oppressed of every land who choose to come under its folds, has been, by orders of a petty tyrant, hauled down and trampled under foot.

I could not help our countrymen because I was not permitted to go there with my command. I was sent away where difficulties had not occurred, although the American Consul at Buenos Ayres expressed his wonder at my absence from the diffi-

Vessels of war are abroad for the sole purpose of protecting the lives, property and rights of our citizens. When I found that my requests to go to Paraguay were refused by the commander-in-chief of the Brazil squadron, when one month later be had 10 direct and authentic information from Lieut. Moore, them. ...7 of the Navy, of the actual condition of affairs in Paraguay, and the means to send me orders again at hand: when I saw that the fear of responsibility made the commander-in chief yet decline sending me where a vessel of war was so much needed, I no longer hesitated, but brought back my command to the United States, rather to ingloriously rot in the mud than ingloriously sail upon the occan. The commander in-chief supposes that in declining forced upon us. It was under the same supposition that Admiral Byng, of the British Navy, acted.

It is an easy matter to idly lie in harbor, here and there, and at the end of three years return with the further proposes to teach the Squad and Company Drills, praise of arduous service; and it is to such persons who demand "that the promise should be kept to the ear" that I write this statement; but the promise with me shall not be "broken to the hope," even though I were upon the instant dismissed from a profession in which I have toiled for thirty years. always sacrificing every personal consideration for the bonor, the dignity, and the glory of the service. The man who could calmly refrain, in command of a vessel-of-war, where her use was perverted, i. e., sent where she was not needed, when great necessity existed for her elsewhere, would be happy in meeting such terms as were proposed by a Chinese commander to an English one in their recent war: That they bore no enmity to each other, and that they might have an engagement during a whole day with much glory to both parties, and no loss of life, by dispensing with the use of shot and balls, and using blank cartridges alone."

I feel that sending batteries abroad means something more than idle parade; that it implies that they are to be sent to such points as seem in need of them; and indeed that they are even to be used, when Pupils in primary department charged the usual price for the honor of the flag demands it-the commanding officer to be held, in the strictest sense, accountable tor an unjust or useless employment of force. Simply to shrink to avoid a responsibility, is contemptiadvantages and cheapness, and pledge to reduce prices, and ble in my eyes, and rather than submit to the degradation of being forced into this passive position, I wholly in the experience of human life.

It is also reported 000 to the line of which he is agent, he was deterof subordinate officers. Captain Hunter, we are nection with the old world by steam, and make the told, is in New York, and suffering from illness. The country from henceforth a by-word and shaking of

The members of Congress were frightened, which he sets forth his motives for returning to the as it was intended they should be, and promptly with-United States without leave. It seems to us to be a drew the notice they had directed to be given, to disvery indiscreet document, and scarcely less inexcusa- continue the bonus to the company, leaving Mr. Colble than the disobedience of orders with which he is line and his associates once more at their case and in the full erjoyment of their great Atlantic monopoly, beside which, the insulated rule and undisputed rights of Capt. Selkirk.

"From the centre all round to the sea," sink into insigficant proportions. It was again repeated upon the floor of Congress, by senators of evessities of the country could be sustained for one penny less than the enormous sum of $800,000, though it was within the knowledge of all these gentlemen that the English line was sustained, when the business was less than half what it is now, for just half the

We often called attention to this last fact; to the discouraging effect of such bounties upon individuallenterprise, and to the impolicy and inconsistency of a representative government like ours, lending itself to the support of monopolies of any kind, and especially those of a commercial character. But all these considerations vanished before the paralyzing eloquence of Mr. Collins's threats. The more we said the service was not worth half what we were paying for it, the more Mr. Collins said he would sell his vessels, and that no one in America could replace

Some believed his story, and trembled at his threats; he found other means of reaching the convictions and votes of a class whose aid he required, but who were not so easily imposed upon, and the resuit was, as we have already stated, that he carried his point. The notice was withdrawn, and the $33,-000 a trip continues to be paid by the government for the support of a line which is annually debilitating the commercial enterprise of this metropolis to an amount, measured pecuniarly, far exceeding the cost of all the Collins steamers put together. Our object in referring to this subject now is, to call attention to a testimonial to the truth of our statement as to the excessive compensation made to these lines, which has just come before the public, and which should bring a blush upon the cheek of every senator who voted to continue the Collins subsidy .-It may be found in a letter addressed by C. Vanderbilt, of this city, to an officer of the government covering a proposal to run a semi monthly line of steamers from New York to Liverpool, in alternation with the Collins line for $15 000 the round voyage, which is some $3,000 less than half the sum paid to the Collins line for each voyage, or about $430,000 less than is paid for the twenty-four voyages of the year. Nor is this all Mr. Vanderbilt proposes. He only asks this subsidy so long as a like subsidy is granted to Messrs. Collins and Conard, and the moment their subsides are withdrawn, he is ready to plant himself upon the great principle of free competition, neither asking or taking any aid whatever from the govern-

No one who knows anything of Cornelius Vanderhilt, of his vast wealth, and the enterprise and genius by which he has acquired it, needs to be told that it is just as easy for him to execute this proposition as to make it. He has already two new steamers, nearly ready for sea, and in four months, we understand, he could place four more on the line if necessary, making six, as swift, and as safe boats as either on the Collins line, at less than half their construction and running expense. The Collins boats have cost much more to build and to runprobably from 33 1.3 to 50 per cent,-than they should have done, from the fact that every person would throw my commission to the dogs, and see if, pretty much, except the sailors, who have done in the wide world, there was no honest mode of gain. anything upon them have been obliged to take a very ing a subsistence, even to a man who is wanting considerable portion of their pay in stock, and in view of that necessity, of course have always charged Whatever the navy has of the affections of the two or three prices for what they did.
